

JODIE MOLLOY

Jodie Molloy is an experienced dramatic writer and story producer with multiple credits in international comedy and drama.

Jodie's television career began in 2008 as the co-writer of the hit New Zealand comedy The Jaquie Brown Diaries, a media satire about a neurotic television presenter struggling to get more famous at the bottom of the world. She's now a full-time creator, writers room consultant and story producer with a particular focus on female material. She works regularly with the best creative talent and production companies and networks in the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand including Apple, Amazon, Disney, the BBC, Viacom UK, ABC Australia.

Recent credits in 2022/23 include Executive Producer on the upcoming Australian remake of The Office and writing multiple episodes on Acorn's My Life Is Murder. She is currently developing her own comedy series.
