

FERGUS NEAL

Fergus Neal is a comedian, writer, and podcaster known for his quick wit, infectious energy, and a unique blend of sharp social insight and playful storytelling.

A regular on the Melbourne comedy scene, Fergus' first solo hour Fergalicious debuted at the 2023 Melbourne International Comedy Festival showcasing his dynamic style and masterful crowd work. His follow-up show in 2025, Fergie Ferg, toured to sold-out crowds across Australia, firmly establishing him as a must-see act at comedy festivals around the country. Now host of the chaotic late-night panel show The InflATE Show at Comedy Republic, Fergus navigates guests from Sez to Corey Worthington to John Safran.

Alongside good friend and fitness influencer, Louis Phillips, Fergus also co-hosts the hit podcast On It Off It where they dissect what they're loving—and leaving behind—from week to week. The show has gained a strong cult following for its hilarious takes, thoughtful conversations and surprising interviews.

Beyond the stage Fergus has built a loyal and ever-growing following on social media, with a collective audience of 200k and over 4 million likes on TikTok. Media outlets have also taken notice, with Fergus being featured on Channel 7, Foxtel, Kayo, and publications including Time Out and The Daily Mail—for his various viral antics including 'inciting' lettuce theft and calling Koshi 'K Dog'.

Whether on the stage or screen, you can feel confident that Fergus is up to something.
